Dear Friend,

Thank you. To us, you are a superhero.

Your support this past year made it possible for Earthroots to spend over 15,700 hours mentoring in nature.

Because of your donation, we were able to give a grieving family the support of community in the form of a living tree planted with love in the memory of their beautiful boy who loved nature.

Because of your support, we initiated a nature connection program that will impact hundreds of children in Title 1 schools.

Because of your generosity, we were able to partner with our community to offer new ancestral arts programs, keeping the traditions of our land alive.

Because you care, we were able to help a special needs child experience a newfound sense of belonging and reduced the stress of everyday life on his parents, giving everyone hope for the future.

Because of the person you are, our shared commitment to Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion made nature connection available to 77 students through our scholarship program.

Thank you, superhero.

At Earthroots, we define a superhero as a person who does heroic deeds in a way that not everyone can or cares to. Not everyone wants people in their community and beyond to experience the natural world. Not everyone can see the health of the planet and its people as both important, and inextricably linked. You do.

Thank you, superhero.

This year, we call on you to be a superhero once again. We ask for your financial support so that we can continue to serve our community and be good stewards of the land in 2023.

Your gift will provide someone in need of nature connection with a life-changing experience, make them aware of healthier life options, and start them toward being a more caring steward of the planet.

Your generosity and caring gift will change someone’s life experience. It will make them a healthier, happier person and as a result, the world is a better place. You are the one who makes it all possible. We are grateful for your generosity.

Thank you, superhero.

In gratitude,

Jodi Levine-Wright, Executive Director
